

Annual ceremony reflecting the atomic bombings in Hiroshima and Nagasaki for the Nuclear Age Peace Foundation

AMONG THE ASHES

Among the ashes
of Hiroshima were crisply charred bodies.

In one of the charred bodies a daughter recognized the gold tooth of her mother.

As the girl reached out to touch the burnt body her mother crumbled to ashes.

Her mother, so vivid in the girl's memory, sifted through her hands, floated away.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER PAUL K. CHAPPELL

Paul graduated from West Point and was a Captain in the U.S. Army during the Iraq War.
He served seven years in the military.

Today, as the Nuclear Age Peace Foundation's Peace Leadership Director, he brings new insight into the issues of war and peace, trauma and rage, and vision and hope. Paul travels the globe, training the next generation of peace leaders while providing them the tools of nonviolence needed to wage peace and promote justice throughout the world.

He is the author of the Road to Peace series, a seven-book series about waging peace, ending war, the art of living, and what it means to be human. The first four published books in the series are Will War Ever End?, The End of War, Peaceful Revolution and The Art of Waging Peace.

"In the twenty-first century, humanity has become so interconnected that we are all citizens of the world, whether we recognize it or not. During the challenging years ahead, our planet will need soldiers of peace who understand this truth of our brotherhood, because our survival in an interconnected world will not depend on our ability to wage war. The fate of humanity will depend upon our willingness to wage peace."

~ Paul K. Chappell

"Anyone who thinks ending war is naïve hasn't put enough thought into it. What's naïve is to think that war can continue and humanity will survive."

Sadako Sasaki was a two-year-old girl living in Hiroshima on August 6th, 1945, the morning the atomic bomb was dropped. Ten years later, she was diagnosed with leukemia. Japanese legend holds that one's wish will be granted upon folding 1,000 paper (origami) cranes. Sadako set out to fold those 1,000 cranes, saying, "I will write peace on your wings, and you will fly all over the world."

Students in Japan were so moved by her story, they began folding cranes, too. Today the paper crane is a symbol of peace. A statue of Sadako now stands in Hiroshima Peace Memorial Park. And 70 years after those hellish bombs were dropped on the men, women and children of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, we honor Sadako's fervent wish for a peaceful world.
